The status of the claims is as follows:

Claims 1-28, 32-54, 56, 57, and 67-69 have been cancelled;

Claims 55, 58-66, and 70-72 are hereby withdrawn from consideration;

and

Claims 30, 31, and 73 are herein addressed below.

Claims 30, 31, and 73 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claim 73, line 8, there is a lack of antecedent basis for "the impact".

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 30, 31, and 73 are further rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Palmer (6,187,411) in view of Jaster et al., (5,347,755). Palmer ('411) discloses panel (50) having flexible fabric covering (column 3, lines 16-17, column 4, lines 63-64), a foam core (10, column 4, line 43), and a plurality of rigid segments. Palmer ('411) fails to disclose the panel to be actuated between an open and closed position to cover an opening. Jaster et al. ('755) disclose a door actuating system which moves panels horizontally to cover an opening within a wall. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide the flexible door panel of Palmer ('411) with a drive system as taught by Jaster ('755) since a drive system allows the panel to be moved between two positions.

Claims 30, 31, and 73 are further rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jaster et al. (5,347,755) in view of Palmer (6,187,411). Jaster et al., ('755) disclose a door actuating system comprising a door panel (1) moved between an open and closed position. Jaster et al., ('755) fail to disclose the panel to be flexibly reinforced and covered with a fabric. Palmer ('411) discloses panel (50) having flexible fabric covering (column 3, lines 16-17, column 4, lines 63-64), a foam core (10, column 4, line 43), and a plurality of rigid segments. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide Jaster et al. ('755) with a flexible panel as taught by Palmer ('411) since a flexible panel allows the panel to be distorted without losing its material properties.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. U.S. patents to Anderson and Slayter disclose elements similar to that of the applicant's invention.
